

The International Board of Certified Trainers (IBCT)

Organizational Profile

Who are we?

History

IBCT is the World's first not-for-profit certification body in the field of corporate training and workplace learning industry. The IBCT has organized certification of trainers and HRD professionals since 1988 and was founded by Professor Warren Pontrelli in the United States. Later, it was continued as a global foundation organized under European law (in Netherlands).

Mission

We develop and apply the state-of-the-art standards for certifying trainers, training centers and training packages; and we strictly apply them. We provide our clients with distinguishable certification services at the highest quality in the market. Our Services are globally perceived as an opportunity to learn and grow and as an international acknowledgment.

Goals

The main goal of IBCT is to assure to the public that trainers, HRD and talent professionals possess the ethical standards and the professional competences and are qualified to practice. Certified trainers possess:

- The correct ethical standards
- An evidence-based customer satisfaction
- Professional competence and independence

Our established standards in the practice of training has been evident for many years, as well as the recognition of those with expertise in the field.

The main goals of the Board are:

- To (re)certify training professionals.
- To promote professional development in the field of training and talent development.
- To (re)certify training centers and facilities.
- To (re)certify professional training programs, materials and packages.

More broadly, the goal of the Board is to secure the high standards consequently assure the public confidence in the training profession.

Standards

Where others focus on customer satisfaction or passing tests, IBCT goes beyond and above. For example, with IBCT's '60% Transfer of Training Standard' our scope in certification of training reaches further. Why? Because organizations need employees that not only pass the test in the training room, but also apply the desired skills successful at the work floor.

Believe

Trainers should not be allowed to train until they get prepared for practice.

Independent

IBCT is a not-for-profit foundation.

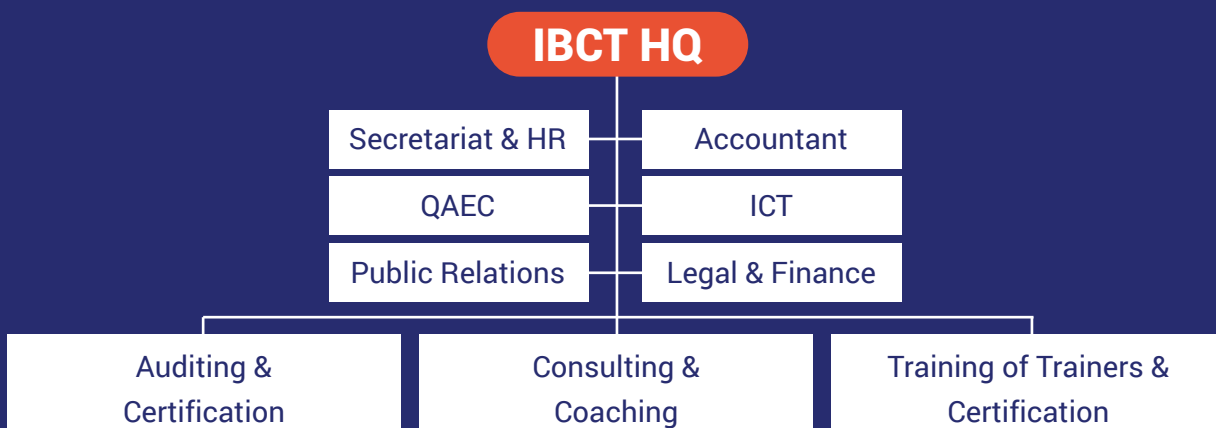

We offer independent services, quality assurance and certification that are not influenced by commercial interests. IBCT is a full member of INQAAHE (The International Network for Quality Assurance Agencies in Higher Education).

Structure

The IBCT has established regional headquarters spread over several continents like the United States, Middle East, Africa, Asia and Europe.

The most head-quarters are organized as follows:

We think Global and Act Local

To ensure the best training results for your organization, we proudly recommend our partners. Our global partner network is experienced in delivering high-quality HRD solutions. The value we add to our train-the-training partners and local focal points is our passion to empower training professionals for the future. Together with them, we disseminate the international standards in training, promote sustainable human resource development, prepare training professionals to become qualified and support them to stay job fit.

IBCT provides the state of the industry train-the-trainer materials, senior trainers and evaluation tools to our local partners. We believe in teamwork spirit and partners who add mutual value and serve the local communities. Our partners are ready to serve you in the following regions: the following regions:

- USA
- Europe

Think global, act local.

Private and public organizations, and independent professionals in the industry value our hallmark. Ministries, public and private universities, private business schools, clients, employers, trainees and funding organizations like the World Bank accept and value our professional audits and reports.

Activities & Sectors

Our quality assurance body certifies the quality of:

- Trainers and training consultants.
- Train the trainer programs(educational).
- Training centers and facilities.
- Training packages and materials.

We provide certification and audit services for the corporate training industry, individual trainers, funding organizations, NGO's and higher education institutions.

Training programs are organized direct, in-house or through IBCT Focal Points.

The Professional Attitude

The reliance of managers of private and public institutions onto the advice of trainers imposes an obligation to maintain high standards of integrity and competence. In recognition of the public interest and their obligation to the profession, members & trainers must:

- Exercise independence in thought and action.
- Hold the affairs of their clients in strict confidence.
- Continuously strive to improve their professional skills.
- Advance professional standards of training.
- Treat similarly situated people similarly, while taking account of human, cultural, and other differences.
- Uphold the honor and dignity of the profession.
- Maintain the IBCT standards of personal conduct.
- Promote fair, safe and sustainable learning environment.
- Strive to achieve the balance between interest as a trainer and that of the client.

Quality Assurance & Ethical Issues Committee

The IBCT Code of Conduct complaints procedure is an alternative dispute resolution system for managing the professional conduct and professional ethics of IBCT members and acts as a professional self-regulating body. The QAEC is also an advisory board to the directors. Each headquarters has its own regional QAEC.
